

A FREE STARTER GUIDE

THE OVERRIDE

Break the pattern. Choose your life.

A short, practical guide to seeing the pattern while it's running, creating a pause, and choosing a different response.

One Pattern. Two Paths.

You are not your patterns. You are the one running them. Most of life runs on autopilot: the same trigger producing the same outcome, again and again. The Override is the one move that changes the path.

THE KEY INSIGHT

The trigger didn't cause the outcome. The story did. And the story was written a long time ago. The pause is where you catch it. The override is where you choose differently.

WHICH PROGRAM IS RUNNING YOU?

Read all eight. Flag every one that sounds like it was written about you. Most people find two or three.

- | | | | |
|----|--|--------------------------|------|
| 01 | THE_ACHIEVER.exe CPU: 100%
Does everything right and feels dead inside. Outruns the emptiness with more. The goal post keeps moving. | ☐ | FLAG |
| 02 | THE_PEACEKEEPER.exe OUTPUT: MUTED
Never says what they need. Years of swallowed words have built a quiet wall of resentment. | ☐ | FLAG |
| 03 | THE_FIXER.exe UPTIME: 24/7
Solves everyone's problem so they never have to sit with their own. Feels most alive when they're needed. | ☐ | FLAG |
| 04 | THE_AVOIDER.exe STATUS: PAUSED
Won't start what they might not finish. Lives in a permanent state of almost. | ☐ | FLAG |
| 05 | THE_PERFECTIONIST.exe LOADING... 99%
Standards impossible by design. If the bar can't be cleared, they never truly fail. Just "not yet." | ☐ | FLAG |
| 06 | THE_PLEASER.exe SHAPESHIFT: ON
Learned early that love is conditional. Becomes whoever's wanted and lost track of what they want. | ☐ | FLAG |
| 07 | THE_CONTROLLER.exe ADMIN MODE
Doesn't trust it'll go well unless they run every variable. Control is the only safety they've ever known. | ☐ | FLAG |
| 08 | THE_DRIFTER.exe IDLE: 6 YEARS
Likable, capable, and in the same place for years. Goes along with everything. Calls the disconnection flexibility. | ☐ | FLAG |

Count your flags.

Two or three is normal. The one you want to argue with is usually the one.

THE ONE RUNNING ME

THE ONE UNDERNEATH

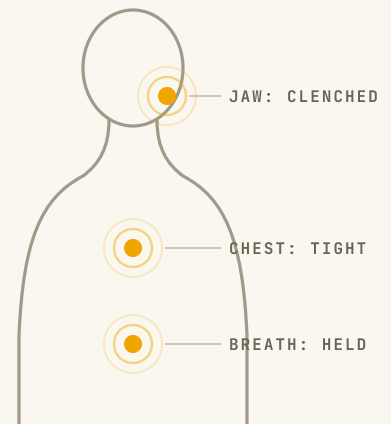

The 10-Second Pause

Between what happens to you and what you do next, there is a space. When the pattern runs, that space is a fraction of a second. It fires before you even see it coming. The work is to widen that space until there's room for a choice. Start here.

01

Notice the cue

Learn the physical signal that your pattern is about to fire: a tight chest, a held breath, a clenched jaw, a flush of heat. The body knows before the mind does.

THE BODY KNOWS FIRST

02

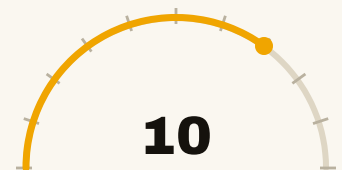

Do nothing for ten seconds

When you feel it, don't respond. Don't send the text, say the thing, or take the action. Just breathe, slow out-breaths. Ten seconds. That's the whole drill.

03

Ask one question

In the space you just made, ask: "Is this a fact, or a story?" Then choose your response from there, not from the pattern.

SLOW OUT-BREATHS. COUNT THEM.

TRY IT THIS WEEK

Pick one recurring trigger: a certain email, a certain person, a certain time of day. For one week, run the 10-second pause every time it shows up. Notice what changes.

YOUR NEXT MOVE

Now run the override.

You've got the model, your pattern, and the first tool. This week, run the 10-second pause every time your number one pattern fires. Don't aim for perfect. Aim for interrupted. Small interruptions, repeated, become a different life.
